ABOUT THIS DOCUMENT

The average UK DTC skincare brand generates 10–15% of revenue from email.

The industry benchmark for a well-managed Klaviyo account: 30–35%.

That gap — every month — is the difference between growing and standing still.

This document shows exactly what closing that gap looks like in practice.

Petal Barrier is a fictional UK clean beauty brand created specifically for this portfolio.

Every element was built inside a live Klaviyo account with correct triggers, accurate time delays, and real conditional logic at every stage. Nothing here is a mockup or a template.

This is what an actual client account looks like when built properly from the ground up.

Every bracketed value — [X]%, [DATE], [Product Name] — is an intentional placeholder replaced with real brand data before any flow goes live. Strategy, structure, and copy are deliberate.

BEFORE YOU READ THE EMAILS

What I Do

I am a Klaviyo email strategist and conversion copywriter. Both. In one person.

Every email you are about to read was written, structured, and sequenced by me. I am the one who built the flow logic, set the timing, and configured the conditional splits according to the client's requirement. That matters more than it sounds. Most brands hire a Klaviyo specialist and a copywriter separately. The specialist builds a flow the copywriter has never seen. The copywriter writes emails the specialist drops in without reading. But since I am a Klaviyo Strategist, Practitioner, and a copywriter myself, I know how to piece together all the pieces of the puzzle completely.

If you already have a copywriter you trust, that is completely fine. I can work alongside them. If you want my input and review on copy before it goes into Klaviyo, I am ready for that too — flagging what will and will not land with a skincare audience, and making sure that the words and the flow logic are telling the same brand story.

Why You Are Seeing a Protected Brand — and Not a Named One

ResultNinja operates the way ninjas do — quietly, and behind the scenes.

I sign NDAs with every client I work with. This keeps their business secrets, their brand name, their Klaviyo data, their revenue numbers, their email performance, and their flow architecture protected. None of it is shared publicly — not even on my website or LinkedIn — nor shown to anyone without explicit written permission from them. Not now. Not ever.

The emails you are about to read are real. The copy is real. The flow logic is real. The results behind them are real. The client exists.

What has been changed is everything that could identify them — the brand name, the founder name, the product names, and any data points that could be traced back. This is not a portfolio sample built in the air. This is a real client engagement, protected by a mutually signed NDA, presented to you with all identifying information removed.

This is how I work with every client. Including you, if we work together.

No client of mine will ever find their Klaviyo revenue, their flow performance, or their email strategy displayed to their competitors so that I can win my next project.

That is not how ResultNinja operates. ■

What I Do Not Do

I do not design.

The templates you are about to see were built inside Klaviyo's native editor — they exist to show the emails in context, not to showcase my design work. In a real engagement I work with your existing brand templates and visual identity. If you ever need designs built from scratch, we can talk about that on a call.

What You Are Evaluating

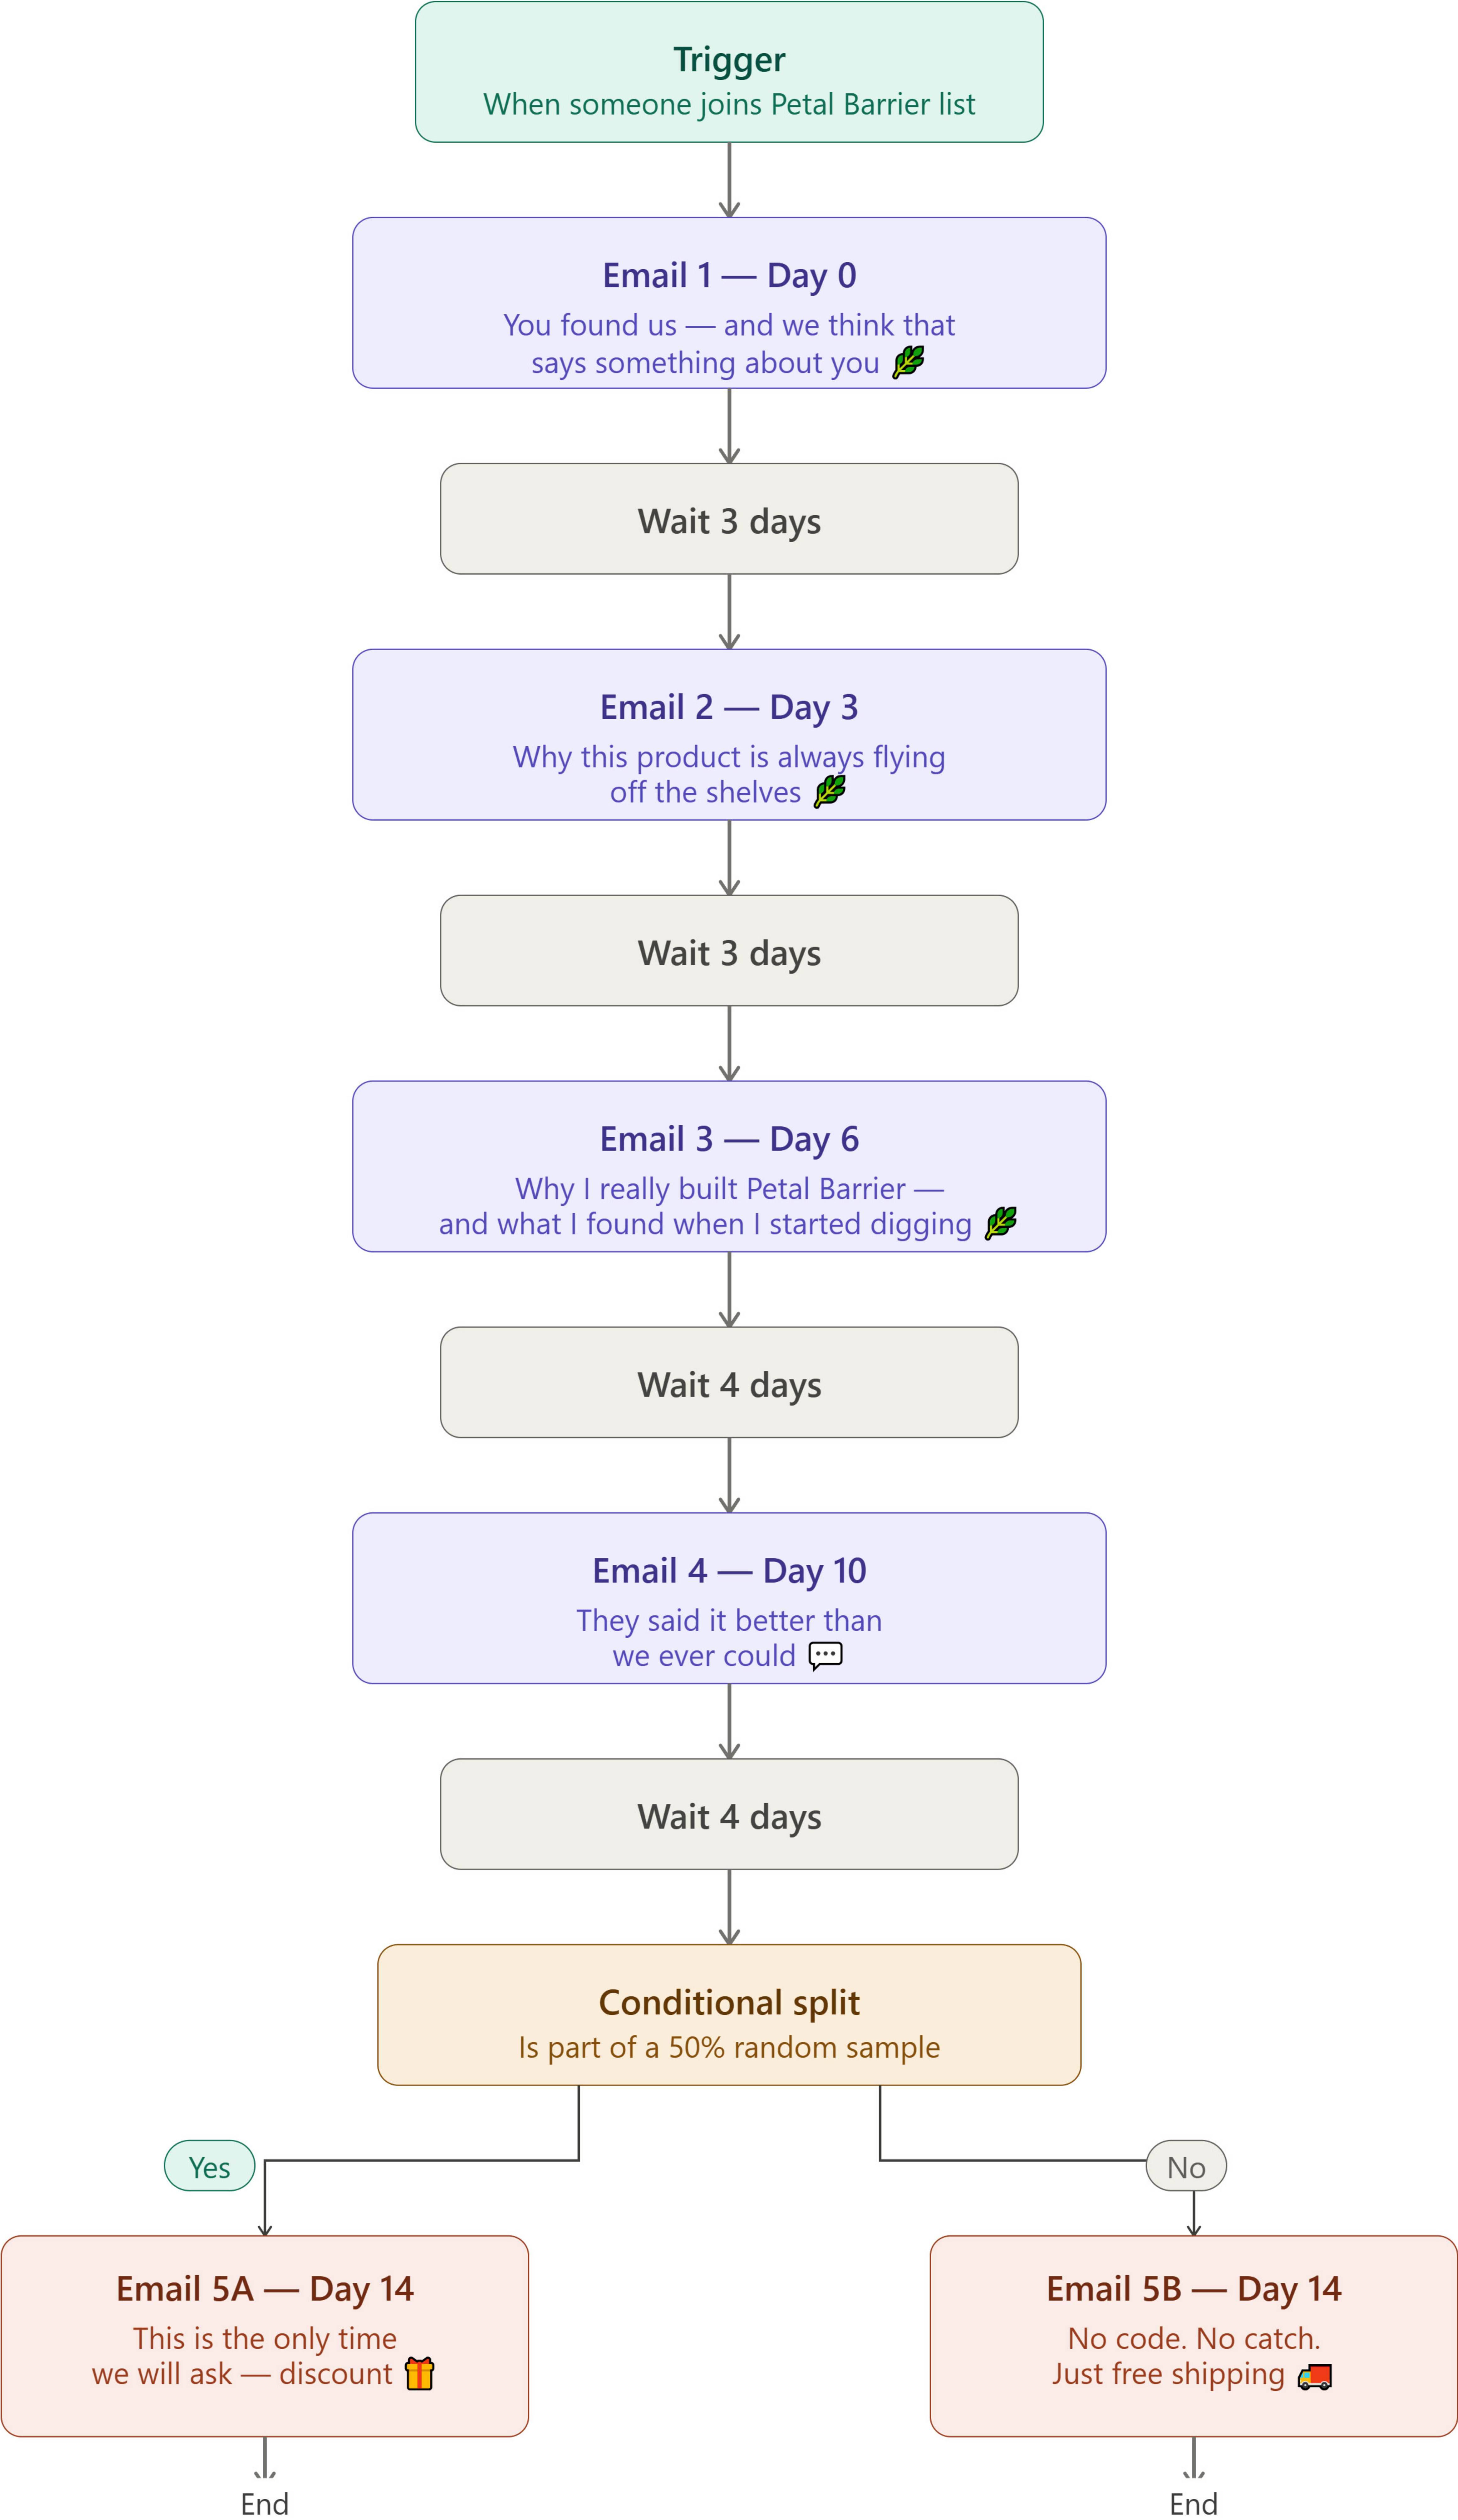

The copy, the sequencing, the flow architecture, and the psychology behind each email and why it arrives when it does. The A/B split logic — as requested by the client to do CJM (Customer Journey Mapping). Those are the deliverables and that is what this document is built to show you.

Also note — this sequence was made fully adhering to the client's needs and their current brand journey. Treat this as a dynamic thing and not static.

Every bracketed value — [X]%, [DATE], [Product Name] — has been replaced with neutral placeholder data to protect the client's identity. In a live account these carry real brand values.

ResultNinja operates on one principle — your results speak. Your data never does.

PETAL BARRIER

GENTLE BY DESIGN.
STRONG BY NATURE.

Hi ,

Welcome to Petal Barrier.

The fact that you are here tells me something about you.

You are not someone who falls for a 72-hour miracle claim. You have probably read more ingredient lists than you care to admit. You have tried things that did not work out for you. And at some point, you started asking the right questions.

That is exactly the kind of person we built this brand for.

We started Petal Barrier because the skincare industry had a honesty problem. Fragrance dressed up as 'Natural'. Actives listed at concentrations either too low to do anything or too high to do more damage than good. Promises that were built around how a product feels in the first 30 seconds, not what it will actually does for the next 30 days.

We decided to do something completely different than the existing trend.

Every formulation we make is built around just one question only: Does this actually support the skin barrier?

Because here is what most brands will never tell you:

🌿 Reactive and Sensitive skin types often needs 60-90 days of consistent care to show visible change.

🌿 The Right Ingredients in the Right Concentrations when used patiently, will get you there.

There is no shortcut to this. But there is a right way and we would love to show you ours.

For now, just one thing:

📧 Hit Reply and tell us : What is your skin's biggest challenge right now?(Sensitivity, Skin Breakouts, Dehydration, Ageing or any other).

We read every reply that you send because you deserve to know the truth.

Rest Assured you are in the right place.

To your healthiest skin,
Sophie Rawlings

P.S. In a few days I am going to introduce you to the product that quietly started all of this. It does not shouts, it just works. I think you will recognize yourself somewhere in that story.

PETAL BARRIER

GENTLE BY DESIGN.
STRONG BY NATURE.

Hi ,

Meet The Repair Serum — our hero formulation, and the one that quietly started everything.

We say quietly because we did not launch it with a PR agency or an influencer endorsing it. We launched with a waitlist of 200+ women who had been following Sophie's ingredient education content for more than 2 years. When this Repair Serum finally dropped, every bottle was gone within 48 hours.

That has not changed much since and you may be wondering now as to 'Why does it keep selling out?'.

Because it does something most barrier serums only claim that they do:

- 🌿 Ceramide-rich formulation that rebuilds the lipid barrier from within, not just on the surface only.
- 🌿 Fragrance-free with essential oils that are built specifically for reactive and sensitive skin that cannot tolerate irritants.
- 🌿 Clinically studied actives at optimal concentrations for best results.
- 🌿 Works for every skin type — Dry, Oily, Sensitive, or Combination.

Here is what the science actually says:

The skin barrier is a lipid matrix including ceramides, fatty acids, cholesterol that keeps moisture in and irritants out. When it is compromised, every skin concern gets worse. Sensitivity spikes, Breakouts increase and Dehydration becomes chronic. The Repair Serum works because it replenishes exactly what a compromised barrier is missing at concentrations that have been tested and not just studied.

This is not a serum that masks symptoms. It addresses the root of the underlying problem.

The results speak for themselves:

💬 "I had been using prescription creams for 2 years for my perioral dermatitis. Within 6 weeks of The Repair Serum, my skin was calmer than it had ever been. I wish I had found this sooner."

— Rachel M., London | Sensitive Skin Type

💬 "I am someone who reacts to almost everything. This is the first serum I have ever used without a single reaction. And my skin thanks me and genuinely looks different after 8 weeks."

— Priya K., Manchester | Reactive Skin Type

💬 "My aesthetician noticed a difference before I said anything. That told me everything."

— Claire O., Edinburgh | Post-Procedure Skin Type

Right now, The Repair Serum is available.

If you use our history as guide, that will not be the case forever.

PETAL BARRIER

GENTLE BY DESIGN.
STRONG BY NATURE.

Hi First name OR "there" ,

No product links today. No CTA. Just something I have been wanting to share with you.

My name is Sophie Rawlings, and I built Petal Barrier out of frustration, which I know is not the most romantic origin story but it is a true one.

I spent most of my late 20's managing my skin without understanding it. Reactive and prone to flaring without warning. I tried the dermatologist-recommended brands. The clinical ranges from the pharmacy. The expensive serums that promised 100% skin barrier repair in their messages. Some of them helped a little. Most did not and a few made things even worse.

So I started asking questions I should have asked earlier.

I then hired a cosmetic chemist for a consultation. Also, I started reading the actual clinical literature behind the ingredients I was putting on my face. After that I started calling manufacturers and asked uncomfortable questions about sourcing and concentrations.

What I found, shockingly unsettled me.

🌿 Actives listed on labels at concentrations too low to do anything clinically meaningful.

🌿 Fragrance and other chemicals which are known irritants were hidden inside products marketed specifically for sensitive skin-type.

🌿 Patented formulas and blends were designed in such a way that it makes it impossible for the customers to know what they are actually applying.

Knowing this, I could not keep buying into it.

So in 2020, with no background in beauty, just stubbornness, a cosmetic chemist I trusted, and a very clear idea, I started formulating what would later become "Petal Barrier".

It took me 18 months. More rounds of testing than I has even planned. More money than I had initially budgeted.

But I kept coming back to this burning question: If I someone who reads labels, who asks questions, who knows what to look for was still being misled, then what is happening to everyone else?.

Petal Barrier exists today because the skincare industry had a transparency problem and I decided to be part of the answer.

Every batch. Every ingredient. Every concentration. Exactly as stated.

Thank you so much for being part of this.

Hi

We promised to hand the microphone over.
So here they are — straight from the women who showed up consistently, trusted the process, and let Petal Barrier do what we designed it to do. No scripts. No gifted product in exchange for a review. Just the real words from the real people.

"I have had reactive skin my whole adult life and spent years being told to just use Simple and nothing else. Petal Barrier was the first brand that made me feel like my skin was worth more than the safest possible option. The Repair Serum changed how my skin behaves — not just how it looks. Week six was when I noticed. Week ten was when my husband noticed without me mentioning it."

— Amelia T., Bristol | Reactive and Sensitive Skin

★★★★★

"As someone who runs competitively, my skin takes a beating — wind, sweat, environmental stress. I had tried every barrier cream on the market. Nothing held up like Petal Barrier. Eight weeks in and my skin genuinely feels different at the end of a long run. Calmer. More resilient. I stopped looking for alternatives."

— Meera S., London | Active Lifestyle, Sensitive Skin

★★★★★

"I was skeptical — I am always skeptical. I have spent too much money on things that did not work. But I read Sophie's story and decided to give it one honest try. Ninety days later I have the calmest skin of my adult life. My aesthetician asked what I had changed. That was all I needed to know."

— Hannah B., Edinburgh | Chronic Sensitivity, Rosacea-Prone

These are the women with different skin-types, different concerns, different starting points and who have all found the same thing at the end of consistent skincare routine.

And the numbers reflect what they feel:

-  Over 70% of Petal Barrier customers have reported reduced sensitivity within the first 30 days
-  Over 30% said their skin felt noticeably calmer within 8 weeks.
-  60% of them have said that they would recommend Petal Barrier to a friend with sensitive skin
-  Average rating: 4.8 out of 5 across 1700+ reviews.

If any of these journeys sound familiar to you, we would love to hear yours too. Hit  Reply and tell us where you are right now. We read every one.
